

Mrs. Schauda Arraigned in Elkhorn on Poison Charge

STATE TO PRESERVE UNITY OF GERMANY

HYSTERICAL AND UNABLE TO PLEAD CASE SET FOR OCT. 3
"NOT GUILTY" ENTERED ON RECORD BY JUSTICE LYON.

STILL SEEK MOTIVE
Relatives Say Mrs. Schauda and Ernest Kufahl Had Been Engaged.

(By Staff Correspondent)
Elkhorn, Wis.,—Held since Saturday on suspicion, with no formal charge against her, Mrs. Myrtle Schauda, 36 year old Whitewater woman, a widow by her own hand, is now held in the Elkhorn county jail at Elkhorn on a charge of attempted murder of her second eldest son, Dorothy, on Friday, Sept. 21. No mention is made of the other three children.

The warrant issued by Justice Charles Lyon on complaint of Sheriff Hal Wyllie, was read to Mrs. Schauda as she lay on her bed in a cell on the second floor of the jail by Judge Lyon about 9 p. m. Almost a complete physical wreck from the two day ordeal Mrs. Schauda was unable to plead and in accordance with the law, Justice Lyon entered a plea of not guilty for her and continued the preliminary hearing until Oct. 3.

To Hold Her in Jail.
Present at the reading of the warrant were Sheriff and Mrs. Hal Wyllie, Turnkey Will Cusick and Justice Lyon. District Attorney Godfrey was not present nor were any newspapermen.

Under the law which allows authorities to hold a person on only 24 hours on suspicion, it became necessary that the woman be held over Monday night. The attempted murder charge is sufficient to hold Mrs. Schauda in jail, and was brought only to compel her to lawfully be lodged within 24 hours, it was explained by officials.

Seeking Motive Only.
That a charge of murder in the first degree will be made later is understood by the officials though District Attorney Godfrey refuses to give any information for the public. The waiting newspaper men from Milwaukee were sent scurrying to Jefferson and Watertown by the Gazette story of the possible angle in which a third person was alleged to have been involved. The story of the crime is finished and all attention is turned to the motive. The district attorney scouts the idea of insanity or mental derangement as a motive for the crime. Yet those who knew her best are of the firm belief that she was given to moments of aberration and that it was these moments which led to the crime.

Sisters Visit Her.
Mrs. Schauda shows signs of a continued nervous breakdown. Outside of District Attorney Godfrey, and other officials, she has seen no one since the night of Monday afternoon when her two sisters, Mrs. (Continued on page 6)

League Rejects Interpretation of Article Ten

(By Associated Press.)
Geneva.—The proposed resolution for the interpretation of article X of the league of nations covenant was rejected by the league assembly in plenary session today. Persia alone voted against the resolution but an unanimous vote was necessary to obtain the assembly's approval. The resolution provides that the constitutional authorities of each state alone should have the right to determine to what extent military assistance should be accorded other nations if their integrity were threatened.

In the debate the representatives of both Persia and Panama spoke against the resolution. The Persian delegate however, said his country was willing to have the resolution submitted to the permanent court of international justice for an advisory opinion. The Canadian spokesman favored the resolution and the French representative also approved it. The Frenchman remarked that the impression existed among delegates that with article X thus interpreted into the league might be hastened. If so, he added, it was so much the better.

SHORTHORN TEST RECORDS

Forty-three head have been selected for the Rock County Milking Short-horn Cow Testing association sale to be held in Janesville on Oct. 24. Every cow in milk will have either a cow testing association or official record. The sale committee established the sale requirement that all cows have records of milk production. The young stock he sold by bulls out of Record of Merit dams or sired by bulls having two or more daughters in the Record of Merit.

This sale of the stock to be sold by Harvey Little on Oct. 25, for the little herd has been tested in association work for many years.

In the C. T. A. report for last month Marquart Brothers had high cow in milk, produced 13.10 pounds of 4.5 per cent milk. Clarabelle the 2nd, the four-year old in the Traynor herd, still holds the 40 pound mark and in eight months this cow has produced 3,195 pounds of milk and 418 pounds of fat. The C. T. A. report follows:

TALKING HONEY

Considering the success obtained in Rock county in beekeeping, largely through the cooperative efforts of the Rock county's Beekeepers' association, unusual interest is being taken by the farmers and others in honey production.

A series of articles have been obtained dealing with bee and honey production which will appear on the Gazette from Page each week. Not only do they contain information of value to the beekeeper, especially one just starting an apiary but to consumers of honey as well. The "busy bee" is an interesting as the animals in the dairy herd. If you know the habits and methods employed by these winged workers in producing honey. The first of the articles follows:

No. 1.

There's a lot of work done in producing a pound of honey. In the form of nectar, as thin as water, the bees collect it from the flowers, drop by drop, and carry it in their honey sacs to the hive and deposit it in the honey comb, which they make from pure beeswax. (Beeswax itself they make from honey). Then they "ripen" it by fanning it with their wings until it has become thick, and much of the water evaporated. After it is fully ripened, they put an airtight capping over it made from pure wax.

It is estimated that it requires 40,000 trips of a honeybee to gather one pound of honey. As a worker bee wears itself out in about six weeks in a heavy honey flow and then dies of overwork, it is evident that it takes a great many bees a great many trips to gather a single pound of the honey that you buy for a few cents.

After the bees have completed the work of gathering, storing and ripening the honey, there is still a great deal of work to be done by human hands before the honey is ready for your table.

On this part of the labor depends much of the quality of the honey you eat. I'll tell you more about it in my next tale.

DRAINED MARSH SOIL YIELDS GOOD CORN

Does drainage pay? Does it to 18 to 20 tons of corn to the acre for silage pay? According to George Hutton, who is superintendent of the Wisconsin experimental farm, the reclaimed marsh land on the university farm yielded 18 to 20 tons of silage corn to the acre this year. The silos are nearly all filled and George is concerned as to what he will do with the surplus of corn from this marsh tract.

About 10 years ago the college of agriculture took over a tract of post marsh land very much like the type which is commonly found in southern Wisconsin. A dike was built and an automatic pump was installed on the land, most of which is at least 42 inches below the level of Lake Mendota. The cost of carrying off the excess water varies from $10 to $12 a year per acre. Many other garden crops are grown on the marsh but corn occupies the biggest part of the tract.

BANANAS N'R NOTHIN'

The day of fast transportation and good roads has brought the farmer, living on the coast, the highway, business in the sale of eggs, butter, fruit and honey. At the same time it has brought him trouble in furnishing the wants of stalled motorists who failed to watch their water, gas or oil supplies.

But one farmer near Janesville, on the Beloit road, has a sign up proclaiming to the world the following message:

"Yes, we have nothing to sell."

found on the market is that it leaves the factory before properly cured and is rushed to market.

The statement said that "there will be no marked change in the situation until the cheese dealer will pay for quality and not on a flat basis regardless of quality. The object of the Wisconsin cheese grading system is to do away with the unbusiness-like methods of paying for cheese on the so-called 'flat basis'."

"True Independence" in the Oil Business

versus Standard Oil (An answer by Independent Oil Men to a glaringly misleading advertisement.)

An advertisement published by Standard Oil, headed "What is an Independent?" calls for a prompt and definite answer from the truly Independent Oil industry.

With no desire to appear bitter or unduly resentful, let us analyze this advertisement.

What has Webster's definition of the word "Independent" got to do with its accepted meaning to the public and the oil industry at large?

There is no question but what a trust octopus or combination of capital, under any name, is "Independent" and can qualify under the cold technicalities of the Dictionary's definition which the Standard of Indiana published in their advertisement, i. e.,

"One who exercises his own will or judgment without the guidance or control of others, whether in thought or some sphere of action."

Surely no one will deny that Standard Oil can perfectly and completely qualify under that definition.

As Independent Oil men, we freely admit Standard Oil is "Independent." Their failing is they are altogether too "Independent," and the legal restrictions which have been established to curb and control their independence, are about our only public safeguard.

The Standard Oil can get no argument out of us. They are "Independent." It is their first, last and middle name, but to rub it in to our branch of the industry and to the public as well, is a glaring case of bad judgment.

The word "Independent" has a deeper significance to those of us who embody real competition in the oil business and a desire to serve the public.

Our use of the word "Independent" is to designate us as separate and apart from Standard Oil domination, guidance or control.

Our use of the word means we take pride and satisfaction in furnishing to the great gasoline and oil consuming public, true competition, which protects them against the Standard idea and definition of "Independence."

COOLIDGE IS NOT EXTREME PACIFIST

Strong Hints as to Future Policies Revealed in Red Cross Talk.

By DAVID LAWRENCE
Copyright, 1923, by Janesville Daily Gazette.

Washington—President Coolidge made his first long speech Monday. Relatively speaking, it was brief—but more than a thousand words—but it says more than the chief executive has been willing to say publicly since he took office. Although there is no direct reference to foreign policy in the speech, he delivered to the annual convention of the Red Cross here, there are plain hints as to the course of Mr. Coolidge in world affairs.

For one thing, Mr. Coolidge is not an out-and-out pacifist. He says that while force is not the "ultimate ruler of mankind," nevertheless "mankind has not yet, can not yet discard the use of force."

Using the Red Cross idea as a symbol of a policy of practical idealism, the president argues that its appeals have been effective because "unless they can be translated into practical action."

"Practical Action" Needed
The "practical action" that human brotherhood, of service, the application of the golden rule, of peace on earth and good will towards men are ideal dreams," says President Coolidge.

At this point Mr. Coolidge does not outline what course would be adopted in the present disturbed state of world affairs but he says guardedly that "it is necessary, on the one hand, to avoid the illusions of the visionaries, and on the other hand, the indifference of the nihilists." This idea of not going to extremes in either direction but steering in the middle of the lane was the late President Coolidge's doctrine of moderation.

Mr. Coolidge insists also that "each individual and each nation owe their first duty to themselves" and that beyond that there is "the obligation of the nation to serve the weak but to administer such service in a way that will not destroy or degrade by making mendicants but will build and strengthen by making character."

Europe Should Help Itself
This thought is in line with the idea that the best thing that could happen to Europe would be a realization that she must rely on herself. Otherwise she might get into the habit of relying on others.

Mr. Coolidge endeavors in his speech to narrow down somewhat the obligation of a nation. "The constant need of civilization," he remarks, "is for a practical idealism which does not undertake 'to assume responsibility for all humanity,' but when a crisis arises 'does not hesitate to go out and make whatever sacrifice is necessary to master the occasion.'"

Mr. Coolidge declares that this kind of idealism was illustrated in the late war when America "went to the rescue of Europe with treasure and men when their own liberty and the liberty of the world was in peril, but when the glory was secure retired from the field unencumbered by spoils, independent, unattached, and unbought, still continuing to render aid and comfort to the relief of the stricken and desolate old world."

"BROKEN HEARTS of BROADWAY"
One of the strongest all-star casts ever assembled for any American love drama is to be seen in "Broken Hearts of Broadway," "Mary Ellis" played by the sweet and winsome Colleen Moore, the girl bravely sets out to conquer New York. From her first trip in the hansom which takes her from the station to her final entrance into a costly and luxurious limousine, "Mary Ellis" bridges a vast space in the respective conditions of life. Between the two, she meets the glams and glamours of Broadway as well as the sins and sorrows of "bohemian" life about the Rialto.

World's Greatest Harp Virtuoso Will Be Here in January

Last winter the greatest cello artist in the world came to Janesville under the auspices of the Apollo club. It was a success—that concert. It told a number of people in fact, a legion of them, that Janesville was appreciative of the best in music and was ready to give such a concert an audience of more than passing size. What was done last winter will be repeated this, only with greater emphasis. The very best of the kind of concert—one would expect in Symphony or Apollo hall in New York city, will be presented by the Apollo club.

The first entertainment of the season on October 29, has already been mentioned. It is by the Grand Opera Club and is to be the first of a trio of outstanding events in the winter season. But what could be more to the cello, Alberto Salvi is with the harp. Thirty years of age, Salvi has taken a place so far ahead of his fellows that none are considered in his class. He has not come to this position alone by genius but by hard work and patient practice since early childhood. Salvi is the master attraction of the second concert of the Apollo course, and will come to Janesville January 21. He brings a harp of unusual size, made especially for him, and on this instrument he produces the most astonishing results.

SCHOOL HEADS TO STATE MEETING
Superintendents of the county and city schools are attending the meeting called by the state superintendent of education at Madison. G. T. Longbottom left Monday and E. O. Holt Tuesday. Both will remain during the week. Part of the program will be conducted by the University of Wisconsin.

OBTAINING SIGNERS FOR AREA TESTING
Additional signers are being obtained for the petitions for the area test in Rock county. While there appears to be no prospects for the test this year, due to shortage of funds, the signing of the petition is being pushed. Twenty-seven signers were obtained by one man, indicating that the first canvass of the county had not been thorough.

THRILLS FEATURE MURDER TRIAL OF WALTER S. WARD

STORY OF BLACKMAIL AS

Testimony on Stand.

BULLETIN—Supreme Court Justice Wagner today denied a motion made by Isaac S. Mills, chief defense counsel in the trial of Walter S. Ward, for dismissal of the first degree murder indictment. Shortly after the opening of court Tuesday, the state rested its case in the prosecution of Ward, and the court adjourned until 10 a. m. Wednesday. The action of the prosecution came unexpectedly. It had been thought presentation of the state's case would take at least several days more. The announcement was made following a conference at which Ralph Ward, brother of the accused man, was present.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
White Plains, N. Y.—Walter S. Ward's trial for the murder of Clarence Peters opened today with two of its expected thrills gone by, with much interest hanging on Deputy Attorney General O'Neill's declaration that the prosecution was a "pure fabrication" and merely a means of getting money from his wealthy father, George S. Ward.

The two thrills came Monday. One was when Perry Curtis Ward, wife of the accused, took the stand and told of her husband's return home on the night of the shooting. The other was when Mrs. J. J. Peters, mother of the slain ex-soldier, testified that her son was "a good boy" and that despite his little brushes with the law and his inability to hold a steady job, he had never been in serious trouble.

Letters Not Admitted
It was during arguments over the admission as evidence of the two letters written by Peters to his parents shortly before he was killed, that O'Neill charged Ward's story of blackmail was false. The court ruled that the letters could not be admitted. O'Neill said the prosecution intended to show that "Clarence Peters was not the kind to blackmail or to kill a man."

"We'll prove that Ward's story of the killing of this man in self-defense was a pure fabrication," O'Neill said. "We'll prove that Ward's story of this blackmail plot was just framed as a means of getting money out of his wealthy father."

Blackmail Charged
When Ward gave himself up, three days after the body of Peters had been found, he said, in a statement submitted by counsel, that Peters and two others had been trying to get money from him. Since that day exact information as to what the circumstances of the blackmail plot were have been lacking.

The only definite legal hint as to what it could have been was an affidavit read to the jury last week. It was made by James Cunningham, race track follower. It charged that George S. Ward was victimized by his son, who was used in a plot with "Rosa" and "John" to get money from "blackmailers." The elder Ward did not pay, but "started an investigation" the affidavit read.

ENGINEER CLEARED IN SHARON DEATH

Coroner's Jury Holds All Hands
Blameless in Crossing Fatality.

Sharon—A coroner's jury, convened here late Monday, found that Munroe Phelps, 70, Sharon, who died Saturday in a Harvard hospital, came to his death as the result of being struck by a Chicago and Northwestern engine and held there was no cause for criminal action.

The jury was composed of Charles Snagor, Will Gile, George Corey, A. J. Salisbury, Charles Goelzer and Wallace Salisbury.

The inquest was held at Brown's undertaking room, where the jury viewed the body, which was brought back from Harvard. Mrs. William Fredericks, sole witness to the accident, declared Phelps was attempting to push his wheelbarrow across the railroad tracks, when a switch engine, standing on the crossing, started up and crushed him before he could get out of the way. Mrs. Fredericks said she had started to help him across with the wheelbarrow when the engine started. She turned away and went home because she said she could not stand to see his crushed body. Clyde Rekenbrodt, first at the scene of the accident, was the only other witness.

Mr. Phelps was 1530 Highland avenue, Janesville, the engineer, was exonerated in Mrs. Fredericks' testimony, as he could not see Mr. Phelps as the latter came from the opposite side of the engine.

Mr. Phelps was buried Tuesday with Masonic services.
